Title: Records of Personal Lives: Accumulating Information Related to People (個人の人生の記録－人物に関連する情報の蓄積－)

Abstract: I will present the recent progress of our research entitled, Records of Personal Lives, a concept that involves accumulating information related to people. The aim of this research is to help people understand people (ourselves and others) and live better through an information science approach. This research includes (1) understanding people by using text and data and (2) personal archive. I will describe our three main projects: (a) personal memory support, (b) web people search, and (c) personal archive.

(This lecture will be given in Japanese.)
